Sep 27, 2007 Photographer: Keith Scott Morton 1 of 12 Family Friendly Dream Homes Relaxed and open, as requested by our focus group, the eclectic living room at the back of the house features large cabinets made of reclaimed wood, with vintage glass doors. A sisal carpet lands the seating area, which is dominated by sexy sofas covered in natural linens. 2 of the 12 Family Friendly Dream Homes These 17-by-23-foot kitchen islands are capable of making traffic flow easy. The smaller (4 square feet), with a built-in sink and quartz work surface, is ideal for food preparation; the larger one (7 by 4 feet), with a dark stained oak top, is great as a buffet. Two adjoining gas ranges allow efficient cooking for large groups. 3 of 12 Family Friendly Dream Homes Half a wall with columns defining kitchens and informal dining zones without closing them. A built-in hut with open shelves tucked into the wall; Her beaded board again lends her a look of unattached furniture. Special taupe-colored paint distinguishes pieces from other wood. An oak table on top of a double wine cooler serves as a bar. Kirby complements the space with sisal rugs, modern farm tables and Windsor chairs with contemporary-looking fan backs. Right on the table, the chandelier plays a shaded pendant on the kitchen island. 4 of the 12 Family Friendly Dream Homes Across the sink wall, two 36-inch stainless steel refrigerators flank the built-in microwave. To tie in with the traditional crown prints of the house, Berkemeyer topped the closet with details that echoed it. The flaming windshield in the middle of the upper area provides warm light. 5 of the 12 Main Bathroom Family Friendly Dream Homes are a popular topic with members of our focus group, who want a generous treatment area for two people and a luxuriously appointed retreat. We granted their wishes, creating a 14-by-22-foot space accented with satin Finished Calcutta Gold marble — in a box on the floor, and in a brick pattern on the glass-enclosed walk-in shower wall, the next page. The limestone fireplace warms the marble, as does the comfortable, linen-enclosed natural chaise that is perfect for relaxing. Scallop chandeliers and zebra leather carpets revive the wow factor and echo some of the upholstery in the living room. 6 out of 12 Family Friendly Dream House No shower like spa will be complete without wide bench seats and some showerheads. This cage has a water source mounted on the wall, on top of the other head, and hand spray. 7 of 12 Family Friendly Dream Homes Sitting space adjacent to blue-green silk curtains, stylish linen settee and coffee table very feminine in style. This is the perfect place for home ladies to relax and get away from it all. 8 of the 12 Family Friendly Dream Houses Classic colonial style is magnificent and very symmetrical. With a mixture of natural stone and and shingle cladding, a harmonious house with a wooded setting. The friendly, circular gravel driveway allows cars to get in and out easily — and with great panache. 9 out of 12 Family Friendly Dream House Panels we want a flexible space not far from the kitchen, above. This 12-by-15-foot zone can be a play area for small children, a homework station, or a craft-center project. The built-in desk and storage unit includes one wall, and a pair of French doors lead to a mud room. Red love chairs, striped cotton carpets and vintage coffee tables make for an efficient multitasking welcome spot. 10 of these 12 Family-Friendly Dream Homes are 11 by 15 feet tall, above the right, offering enough storage for everything from boots and hygiene kits to recycled equipment and sportswear. Because it looks just as important as the function, the built-in cabinets and benches are painted soothing green to complement the limestone floor tiles. Pale blue chair cushions and Roman shades with leaf motifs complement the customized décor. 11 of 12 Family Friendly Dream Homes Bathrooms in the dog grooming and storage area are finished with glass doors and classic subway tiles. 12 of 12 Ads — Continue Reading Below This content is created and maintained by third parties, and imported onto this page to help users provide their email addresses. You may be able to find more information about this and similar content in the piano.io Participating in a show house can also be expensive. Although it is often possible to borrow furniture from vendors and find sponsors for fabrics and wallpapers, there will always be a fee for services such as shipping and installation, which must be paid for by the designer. It's an investment, Robinson. To to reduce spending, Williams recommends looking for emerging artisans who might be willing to collaborate mostly for exposure. If you want to do a decorative mural or some beautiful paint finishing, try to find craftsmen who want to get their work out there, he said. Maybe they'll do it for some nominal amount, or even for free. When installing a room, flexibility is key. You have to be ready to solve the problem, says interior designer Iris Dankner, founder of the Holiday House show house in New York and the Hamptons, which is expanding with a London location this September. Sometimes you will start installing and see that the chandelier you chose is already used by other designers, so you have to change it. Alternatively, one time one of our designers had her wardrobe stuck in customs, so she had to change her entire design. Alex Papachristidis' charming dining room at Kips Bay 2016. Photograph: Phillip EnnisHow to show the designer's house Even top shows like Kips Bay and Holiday House are wide open to new talent because they want to foster a vibrant mix of established and growing designers. Like most show houses, they ask designers to submit portfolios for consideration, which is examined by the committee. We see jobs, social media follows, and whether they have the financial means to do so, says Dankner. Once a room is complete and open to the public, a designer can make the most of the experience by being present in the room, or having employees attend, as often as possible. The more designers can spend at a show house meeting people, the better for them, said Williams, who also recommends having business cards and other printed materials on hand. I used to put all my sources on the sheet for people to take, and they would always go quickly. Finally, says Heissmann, get the best photos taken from your space you can afford, and make sure you have the right to share them, so they can be added to your portfolio, shared on Instagram, and distributed to publications. Hopefully, it's one of the best things you've ever done, notes Williams, and then you can get it out to the public yourself. Finding your dream home is very similar to finding the perfect partner. It's good to see a little over your league. With a home, you can always try to negotiate an affordable deal before settling for a cheaper price. You can decide what each quality is worth in your dream home and what is on offer for the whole package. Most likely you will get a counteroffer from the seller, but the worst that can happen is that your offer is rejected and you have to keep looking for your dream home. There are worse ways to spend a Saturday afternoon. Your castle or your nightmares? One man's castle is another man's nightmare. You may like the city's bright lights 24 hours, but the person next to you may want a small town where sidewalks are rolled up before 8.m every night. On the other hand, there are common features in the interiors of many houses that the majority of people find very attractive. Generally, a house with an open floor plan and a well-appointed kitchen is near the top of most people's preferences. However, the kitchen of your dreams may not require more than enough counter space with an easy-to-reach refrigerator and appliances. A gourmet cook might insist on a professional table grill and two full-size ovens. What you have to offer for your dream home, you don't want to get involved in a bidding war - even for your dream home. There are some bidding tricks that increase your chances, and the answer isn't always more money. One of the rarely used techniques is to bargain with odd hikes. If you're willing to pay the full price for your dream home, make a full price offer plus $200. That's not enough to break your budget, but it will attract the attention of sellers if they have two other full-price deals. And if you can't turn down more offers. Don't bid for a $5,000 raise. Instead, it remains slightly ahead of competition with a $5,200 increase. The offer may have absolutely nothing to do with money. For many, time is more important than money. Most bidders will put a time limit of 24, 48 or 72 hours on the bid. When the seller sees multiple offers, offers, the limit becomes irritating. Instead, give the seller a week or 10 days to respond. Keep the pressure off. Eliminate other common contingencies for quick closing and you may have low-cost deals but win. Consider Everything. Then Reconsider Like most things in life, you know it when you see it. That definitely applies to your dream home. Make a list of everything you love and everything you don't like in every house you've ever lived in. Put the list aside for a few days before returning there. Consider having someone you trust go on it with you for more ideas you haven't considered. Ultimately, it's not just about specific features. The overall design and how the different features work is just as important. But you will almost certainly have a list of must have features that determine exactly what is on offer: Interior Environment Retail environment and travel facilities © 2020 Benzinga.com.
